

Managing the Storm

Managing the Storm

Our team of experienced legal professionals can help you evaluate, mitigate and resolve claims in an effective and efficient manner.

Early evaluation of risk is accomplished by our systematic approach to every case we handle. The Murphy Legal system ensures early analysis of all cases with the goal of being “trial ready” in approximately eight months.

For catastrophic loss cases, our 24-hour response team is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Early evaluation is like accurately forecasting a coming storm - so it can be managed effectively.

Mitigation must be well planned and proactive. Instead of running from the storm, we at Murphy Legal view ourselves more as storm chasers - seeking to engage in dispassionate analysis of an ominous threat and reduce it to a risk management decision.

Mitigation of risk requires formulating a clear and concise strategic plan early in the claims process. The old military adage of “two is one and one is none” is just as true in litigation – it takes a team. Collaboration in formulating a strategic plan is a team sport, and that plan is essential to accomplishing our client’s desired outcome.

At Murphy Legal we host collaborative, online, strategic planning sessions on every case, and follow up with periodic “clarity checks” or “course correction” sessions to ensure we are on task and exceeding the client’s expectations.

We prepare every case as if trial is inevitable. Ironically, this approach almost invariably leads to cases being resolved well before trial. But when trial is necessary, our trial team always heads to the courthouse fully prepared and armed with the consent of a fully informed client.

The combination of our experience and systematic and methodical approach to the litigation process enables us to find calm in the eye of the storm. Our firm has routinely found successes in court rooms throughout the state of Texas and beyond in cases ranging from minor impact, soft tissue claims and claims involving surgical recommendation and/or intervention, to multimillion-dollar contract disputes and catastrophic loss claims involving international business transactions, brain injury, paralysis, burns, sexual assault, and death.

Premises Liability

Each and every business that owns or occupies property, has exposure to premises liability claims. Serious accidents may be the result of failure to adhere to safety requirements, environmental regulations, OSHA compliance, or even third-party negligence. Whatever the circumstances, Murphy Legal is well versed on the laws related to premises liability and is committed to ensuring our defense dictates the outcome of a case.

Consumer & Business Litigation

Today's business climate is a bundle of ever-changing rules and regulations. Our experienced legal team can help you make sense of the changing landscape and unexpected hurdles. Whether you are a one-man startup, a Fortune 50 company, a not-for-profit, an employee, or an independent contractor, we have the knowledge and experience to help you through your next unexpected development. We can help with creating your corporation, governing documents, a breach of contract, payment problems, wrongful termination, intellectual property dispute, non-disclosure and non-compete agreements. Our team has successfully assisted numerous businesses and individuals in evaluating their situation, mitigating the disruption to their lives, and resolving the issue.

Contracts

Contracts are created as a form of protection. We all enter into contracts with the hope that both parties will fulfill the terms listed in the document, each having an obligation to one another. Parties who have broken contracts claim many reasons, hoping that enforcement of the contract won't occur. Murphy Legal strives to resolve these disputes efficiently for our clients.

Construction Litigation

The construction industry is one of the ripest industries for legal matters. Owners, design professionals, and contractors are routinely faced with issues regarding delays in completion of the project, cost overruns, payment, mechanic's and materialman's liens, design and/or construction defects, and numerous other perceived or actual matters. In construction, having experienced counsel is not just beneficial, it is crucial to successful resolution of your claim. At Murphy Legal, our team of experienced attorneys and paralegals can help you with your constructed related questions and claims. We have successfully assisted both owners and contractors in assessing their issues, mitigating the disruption to their lives, and resolving the issues.

Non-Subscriber Defense

Texas does not require employers to carry workers compensation insurance. Employers that make that decision are called "non-subscribers." Many times, Texas "non-subscriber" employers make this change as a cost saving mechanism compared to paying workers compensation insurance premiums.

When an employer becomes a non-subscriber employer, it is legally permissible for their injured employee to file a lawsuit. However, there are a myriad of tools that "non-subscriber" employers have at their disposal to prevent employee personal injury litigation. These include creating an ERISA based occupational injury benefit plan that pays for an injured employees' medical bills and lost wages. Other available tools are the use of arbitration agreements and the implementation of well documented employee safety training programs.

Insurance Defense

If you are currently seeking to defend your company or an insured against insurance-related recovery, or simply desire to be proactive in seeking advice from a proficient and experienced team, Murphy Legal is prepared to be an asset to your business.

Commercial Litigation

Involving virtually every type of dispute that can arise in the business context, our team can evaluate the merits of the dispute and successfully prosecute or defend the legal and business needs of our client. Cases can range from breach of contract, partnership/joint venture disputes, to fiduciary duty allegations and everything in between. We strive to assist our clients in mitigating and resolving these issues.

Managing the Storm

Results Driven

To ensure that our focus is always aligned with our clients' goals, we have developed a unique compensation system for attorneys. Unlike most defense firms, who compensate attorneys based on billable hours, our team members are compensated according to our clients' most important criteria, such as duration of the file, accuracy of case evaluation, and timeliness of reporting.

Team members are evaluated quarterly based on these and other key performance indicators. By aligning the interests of our attorneys and clients, Murphy Legal can provide the highest standard of quality, performance, and client trust in the legal- defense industry.

Billing Systems

We currently use Smokeball for traditional billing and reporting. The firm complies with all requirements as defined in client litigation guidelines, including the submission of invoices in LEDES format and through external billing systems such as DXC.

Language & Diversity

At Murphy Legal, our bilingual team of paralegals and attorneys service the needs of our clients and cases in both English and Spanish.

Murphy Legal is a highly diverse team of experienced attorneys and legal professionals. We believe that diversity extends beyond race and gender to include religious belief, age, culture, sexual orientation, and other considerations. Discrimination or harassment on any of these grounds is expressly prohibited at Murphy Legal, in any work-related activity, or in any of the firm's employment or recruitment practices.

Cyber Security Policy

Murphy Legal maintains a written cyber security policy that applies to employees, vendors and partners. The policy addresses data confidentiality, email and device security, antivirus protection, password management, data transfer, data retention, and backup procedures. Disciplinary actions, including termination, are taken in the event of a security breach. A copy of the full cyber security policy is available on request.
